

Betrothed to Bamboo

TUESDAY, 10 JUNE 2008

Ever since we added tiny feet to the planet, we've become very aware of our growing environmental footprint.

Until recently, it's been hard to marry our crunchy granola souls with our fabulous outer selves. (And those little extensions of ourselves too. Do all organic onesies have to be boring?) Then we discovered Bamboo Lily. This adorable Asian-inspired baby and toddler line is crafted in eco-friendly bamboo. Designer Lillian Chiu proudly creates the label with fabrics and garments made in Canada.

With bamboo's natural UV filtering and anti-bacterial properties, we're wrapping our little peanut up in monogrammed hooded beach robes ($45) post-swim. And on those hot humid days, adorable "Miso Cute" onesies ($28) and tees ($25) will keep our babies and toddlers dry. (Bamboo flicks moisture away from the skin.)

100% renewable, biodegradable and luxuriously soft, we think we found a textile soulmate.

Bamboo Lily

<http://www.bamboolily.ca>

Available for purchase online

RATE THIS SWEET NOTHING

Average Reader Rating: Sweetest!

PRINT THIS PAGE

EMAIL THIS PAGE

SIGN UP